

Scrumptious Saturn Rings

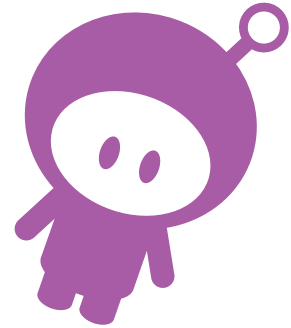

The sixth planet in the solar system is called Saturn. It has beautiful rings that are made up of pieces of rock, ice and dust. In this activity, you can make rings that look like Saturn's rings, but the rings you make you can eat! Let's get started!

What you will need to get started:

- Ice cream (for the ice)
- Nuts, chopped finely (for the rocks and dust)
- A few small plates
- Plastic wrap

Directions

Take some ice cream out of the container and place it in a big bowl. Let the ice cream soften for a few minutes. Stir the finely chopped nuts into the soft ice cream. Put your ring mix around the inside rim of the plate in a ring shape. Cover the plate with your plastic wrap and put the plate in the freezer for a few hours. Take your Scrumptious Saturn Rings out of the freezer and enjoy a special space treat!
